ABOUT

KIHOME and NZUNGA serve in the Dominican Republic (DR) as a vital link between International Ministries and the island of Hispaniola. They started a new Creole-speaking church, New Creation Baptist, in Villa Altagracia. They work to address the multiple issues people are facing in the DR and Haiti. Kihomi works with families in counseling, women's health, community health, evangelism and economic development. She is the advisor to the Association des Femmes Baptistes d'Haiti. Kihomi and Nzunga write books used in French-speaking countries. They also administer a scholarship program for students, manage mission projects that provide poor children with goats and pigs, and supervise the Cap-Haitian Eye Clinic that is expanding to include a dental clinic.

Breaking-ground ceremony for the new church.

“ MINISTRY STORY

In August 2023, we went to Villa Altagracia to visit our soon-to-be-finished permanent apartment. Upon our arrival, we discovered that Pastor Benny, the mission coordinator in our sister denomination, IBAREDO, had called key Haitian persons to come meet us. In what he called a “greet and meet,” he asked us both if we knew why we were there.

We said No. We did not know why.

He put it bluntly: we were there to develop a Haitian church. Three families were eager to start a church but lacked a preacher. In that community, there are a large number of Haitians who don't fit in the Spanish-speaking church.

Right there, I called my eye clinic staff to check the prices of Creole Bibles and Creole hymnals. The Bibles were 2500 gourdes (U.S. $18), and the hymnals were 1000 gourdes (U.S. $7.50). The church is now a reality and is attracting even the Spanish-speaking people.
